

Sultan Aldosari
ESL220-2/Keys Stahl D2
Descriptive paragraph
6/7/11

How my Foot Broken

A year ago, my foot was broken, and I was scared because I didn't get my health insurance yet. The story start from the ELC, they decided to organize some teams to play soccer and challenging other teams. In the first day of this activity, it appeared to me that our couch was Baberhan who taught me in the first semester. He asked me to play as second striker. This position is always staying in the opponent's area to make score or help the striker. We won the first three games and I scored five goals. In the semi final, I stayed in the same position. During that time there was a Korean guy who was defensive. Additionally, he was so serious when he played against us. Before the end of the game, I was heading to score and suddenly the Korean guy try to tackle me with a little aggressive action which broke my foot. Then, I left the field and went to my apartment because I thought that just bruise. At that night I couldn't sleep because it was hurt, and I called my friend to pick me up to a hospital. When I arrived to the hospital, a nurse asked me how is the pain from one to ten. One is a little pain and ten is a strong and the pain that I felt was more than ten. After that, the nurse asked me about the health insurance and I told her that I have one, but I didn't receive it yet. I gave her my insurance company contact number, and she contacted with them. Fortunately, they accepted my situation, and they covered everything. Finally, they sent me to the X-ray room to see if my foot broken or not. Unfortunately, my foot was broken and that was a huge issue for me because this was first time for me having situation like that. As we have seen, the health insurance is an important factor for everyone because most people cannot afford pay hospital's fee and medication.

I broke

I had recently moved to the U.S. to study abroad but hadn't gotten

You have simply used content from your essay. This needs to have different content and a separate focus/main idea

Sultan Aldosari
ESL220-2/Keys Stahl
Expository paragraph D2
6/7/11

Each One should Have Health Insurance

One of the government responsibilities is to give health insurance to ~~their~~ citizens who can't afford it. ~~don't have ability to get it, or build public hospitals to them.~~ I believe that most government can handle it. For example, my country which is Saudi Arabia built a lot of hospitals for everyone. Additionally, the Saudi's government plays an important role to force all companies to give their employers health insurance and that decrease the number of people in the public hospitals. With this strategy the government makes balance between both public and private hospitals. Also, there is a good point in the public hospitals that is foreign people can go there and get treatment without fees and medication as well. Moreover, the students who are studying abroad with scholarship the government provides to them health insurance. This is a great benefit to any student who studies abroad because in most countries without health insurance you cannot get treatment. If the students don't have the health insurance, that will cost them a lot of money for the treatment and medication. Every government should provide health insurance or build hospitals that don't require the health insurance to their citizens because this is one of their rights. In conclusion, the health insurance is a public opinion for the countries who don't give their citizens health insurance. Also, these countries faced some issues especially with people who work with low salary and don't have insurance. Additionally, that will encourage these people to follow illegal ways to get more money in order to get health insurance.

*Your ff needs a new, more clear and logical structure, as well as a main idea.
I have highlighted the sentences/ideas that could be your generalizations.*